

How Do I Get Back Into My Coinbase Login Account?

Getting back into your Coinbase account depends on why you cannot log in. If you forgot your password, click "Forgot password?" on the login page, enter your registered email address, and follow the reset link sent to your inbox. You will be able to create a new password and log in within minutes. If you are entering the correct password but still cannot log in, you may be locked out due to too many failed attempts, lost two-factor authentication (2FA) access, or a changed phone number. In these cases, do not keep trying to log in, as this may extend the lock. For immediate help getting back into your account, call 1-888-612-5316 right away.

When you call 1-888-612-5316, have your government-issued photo ID, registered email address, and any transaction details ready. A support agent will verify your identity and guide you through the recovery process. If you lost access to your 2FA device, the agent can manually disable the old 2FA and help you set up a new one. If your account is locked due to suspicious activity or multiple failed attempts, the agent can unlock it after verification. If you no longer have access to your registered phone number or email, the agent can update those details for you. Account recovery through phone support typically takes 24 to 72 hours. Never create a new Coinbase account while trying to recover your existing one, as this can permanently complicate access. For the fastest, most reliable way to get back into your Coinbase login account, call 1-888-612-5316 today and speak with a live support agent.
